

Greetings! It's March - can spring be far behind? Here on March 1 we had a blustery day with snow but reported shouldn't amount to much. Got up to between 1-2" on the patio -- also turned colder. It's still there. I wasn't going to sit outside as there wasn't much sun so decided it could just melt. Sun is out this morning although it is only 20 degrees so may not melt yet. #We had a good turnout last month at the Hay Market and food was good. Lyle & Babe Jacobson again made the long trip from Baldwin, WI to join us and Marlys Jacobson Larson drove up from Marion, IA. Martha & Jim Alm from Pine Island are usually there also. Quite a few miles covered from all directions just to gather and share fellowship. Looking forward to this fall for more of the same.

#Wednesday, March 15, 11:30 AM we will meet at Good Times. For those who might not be familiar with the name it is on the West Side in part of the old Jack & Jill grocery store. Just beyond Johnson Standard Station and the Green Parrot. Those names should ring a bell. Hope to see many of you on the 15th at Good times to share a good time.

Yesterday was Ash Wednesday and we are in the season of Lent. A time to stop, look inside and reflect on ourselves. A time to stop and think about the season and what it leads up to. May we all be thankful for our many blessings as we reflect during this season.

Take care. Sonja (think spring)
